McGraw Is Cornering Market Of Young Pitching Material

"Ivory Hunters" For the Giant Chief Have Turned In Nearly a Dozen Slab Prospects, Who Will Be Taken to the Spring Training Camp at Marlin, Tex.

By Damon Runyan.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Aug. 28.—A wing will have to be constructed to the justly celebrated Arlington hotel at Marlin, Texas, this coming winter to accommodate the wild horde of young pitchers which will be turned loose upon that peaceful community by John J. McGraw in February, 1912.

Apparently the Giant chief is endeavoring to corner the heavier supply of the far side of the Atlantic, west, south and east, and apparently working on one exclusive order, his "Ivory Hunters" have turned in nearly a dozen slab prospects to date, with the draft and the recall yet to be heard from.

There is every prospect that McGraw will have from 15 to 20 pitchers in Marlin next spring, not counting his veterans, Mathewson, Marquard, Wilkie, Ames, Crandall and Tesreau. He has already spent a small fortune in buying up kid heavies reported favorably by his scouts. It is very evident that McGraw sent his scouts out with a curious singleness of purpose. The order was manifestly pitchers—and nothing else. At least, nothing else has been turned in so far.

It is unlikely that McGraw will get much chance to look these boys over this fall, either, unless his men clinch the National league race sooner than is expected, and he will, therefore, probably follow out his scheme of last year, when he took the youngsters to Marlin in advance of the regulars.

In 1911 McGraw had only seven or eight pitching recruits at Marlin, while this season he has already gathered in ten.

List of New Pitchers:

Here is the list to date: Al Demaree, of the Mobile club of the Southern league; Bader, from Dallas, of the Texas league; Goulet, from Indianapolis, of the American association; Perryman, from Richmond, of the Virginia league; Schupp, from Decatur, of the Three-I league; Hanley, from Newark, of the Ohio State; Paddy Greene, from Holyoke, of the Connecticut league; Shorne and Robertson, Carolina collegians, and Kirby, from Traverse City, of the Michigan State.

Demaree is a right hander who is said to stand the Giant management $7500 and Eugene Paulet, a young outfielder, who was with the club last season. The price of Bader is unknown, but he is accounted as the best pitcher the Dallas club owns, and probably cost at least $1500, if not more. Theodore Goulet is a southpaw, who was with Springfield of the Central association this season and who was recently turned back to Indianapolis and sold to McGraw by the latter club. He is called the "strike-out king" because he whiffed an unusually large bunch of batters in his games.

Perryman, the Virginian, is studying for the ministry and baseball is more or less of a side issue, but he is said to be a very promising heavier. Paddy Greene, whose right name is Griener, or something similar, has also been claimed by the New York Americans, who allege they have an option on any Holyoke player for $1000, but McGraw is said to have paid $5000 and expects to get this year.

The Giant leader may recall Louie Drucker, the blond Texan, now with Toronto of the International league, who seems to be gradually recovering from the injury which put him out of business with the big leaguers. Louis Hanley, rather likable Fullenweider from the first and kept him until he could place him to the best advantage.

It is unlikely that any of the other pitching recruits who were with the Giants last spring will be recalled.

Athletes Of Today Equal In Grace Those Of Ancient Greece

Miss Elsie Hanaman, amateur champion swimmer, in one of her graceful plunges; and Harry S. Babcock, of Columbia university, pole vaulter, who holds the Olympic record.
